Helius Energy appoints Feedstock Director

Biomass-to-power company Helius Energy plc (Helius Energy) has appointed Oliver Blundell as Feedstock Director.

Helius Energy plc has appointed Oliver Blundell to the position of Feedstock Director from Monday 2 March 2009.

Oliver previous held a number of roles within the Cargill group. Most recently he was based in Geneva where he was responsible for developing fuel supply chains for planned biomass projects and assessing energy markets.

John Seed, Managing Director of Helius Energy, said:

“Secure and sustainable sources of feedstock and fuel are essential to the success of any biomass project. We are delighted to welcome someone with Oliver’s experience to the Helius Team where he will expand on our existing work to build sustainable biomass supply chains.”

Oliver Blundell added:

“Helius has an enviable reputation in the biomass sector and continues to demonstrate its commitment to using renewable fuel sources which deliver benefits to both the environment and the company.”
